Training ME android app developers

As Koenig receives 'Android Authorized Training Centre' certification, the IT company says it is bullish on meeting growing demand for Android mobile app developers

EMIRATES BUSINESS

Koenig, a leading provider of state-of-the-art technical training and certifications across the IT technologies globally, has been making strides towards better services ever since its inception. The latest addition to the list of certifications and accolades which makes it a market leader is the coveted 'Android Authorized Training Centre' certification.

The IT training provider and an offshore training company, Koenig has revealed that it has received 'Android Authorized Training Centre' certification from Android Advanced Training Consultants (Android ATC). The new certification will allow Koenig to offer various Android-based training courses and assessment exams to certify their Android skills and competencies. The move demonstrates the company's upbeat attitude towards meeting the increasing demand for Android mobile app developers.

The company will now be offering professional Android programming courses that can help Middle East developers make their mark in the mobile application development and testing segment. The company has strategically partnered with Android ATC to empower application developers and IT-oriented employees with the skills to build advanced Android applications.

"We are aware of the value of Android applications in the world of telecommunications, because we know that Android devices are on the increase and developing fast worldwide and because we know that it facilitates our lives, we determined to launch this training program in the Middle East," said Lalit Singh, Senior Android Consultant, Koenig.

"This new certification will now allow Koenig Dubai to deliver android courses and training materials, attendance certificates and official exams through android ATC certified instructors who are qualified to provide Android training courses proficiently. This new development falls in line with our continuing commitment to provide world-class fully efficient IT training courses to meet the demands of today's rapidly changing business landscape."

Android ATC's main objective is to spread learning of Android development applications around the world. The company aims to do this by providing comprehensive and integrated IT certificates and courses for Android at different levels of trainees. Android ATC maintains key partnership with training institutions from all over the world—including Koenig. In addition, Android ATC also look towards empowering instructors and help them become fully qualified in training courses for Android OS.
